After a Flurry of Innovations at Summit, and Upside at Big Cloud, SNOW to Ship 2Q...

SNOW's 2Q on Tap. Next week (8/27), Snowflake is scheduled to report its 2Q:FY26 results with a call at 5:00 p.m. ET. Snowflake's quarterly update follows a series of ambitious innovation announcements at Snowflake Summit in June, combined with upside from Big Cloud this earnings season. We believe Snowflake is well positioned to benefit from new innovations and participate in long-term secular tech trends; however, competition remains dynamic, software under pressure, and the macro environment treacherous.

Expecting 28% Growth. We believe Snowflake will meet our 2Q:FY26 revenue forecast of $1.113 billion (up 28%; Street at $1.087 billion) and our EPS projection of $0.32 (Street at $0.26). Our 2Q:FY26 revenue estimate reflects 7% QoQ growth, weaker than the four-year July quarter average of a 12% rise. We are modeling an operating profit of $116.3 million in 2Q:FY26 and an operating margin of 10.5%, up from 8.8% in 1Q:FY26, and above 5.0% in 2Q:FY25. Recall, Snowflake's 2Q:FY26 outlook calls for an operating margin of 8%.

Looking for Product Growth to Accelerate. We are projecting 2Q:FY26 product sales of $1.066 billion (up 29% YoY) and professional services & other revenue of $47.5 million (up 20%). Our product revenue growth estimate of 29% in 2Q:FY26 represents an acceleration from the 26% increase in 1Q:FY26 but below the 30% rise in 2Q:FY25. Snowflake expects 2Q:FY26 product revenue of $1.035-1.040 billion (up 25%). We expect deferred revenue of $2.207 billion (up 19% YoY) in 2Q:FY26 and billings of $996.9 million (up 28%).

Upside at Big Cloud and New Innovations at Summit. Despite a tempestuous macro, all three of the leading cloud service providers beat the Street's 2Q:25 revenue estimates. After two consecutive quarters of deceleration, the average YoY revenue growth rate for Big Cloud accelerated to 29% in 2Q:25 from 26% in 1Q:25, and above the 27% uptick in 2Q:24. Growth at Alphabet's (GOOGL/Neutral) Google Cloud and Microsoft's (MSFT/Not Rated) Azure accelerated in 2Q:25, while growth at Amazon's (AMZN/Buy) AWS was consistent with 1Q:25. Moreover, the Snowflake Summit was held in June and Snowflake introduced an avalanche of new innovations, including Snowflake Intelligence, Snowflake Openflow, Cortex AISQL, SnowConvert AI, Standard Warehouse - Generation 2, and Snowflake Adaptive Compute. Moreover, Snowflake added a transactional database to the platform with the acquisition of Crunchy Data, "a leading provider of trusted open source Postgres technology and products."

Street Estimates Appear Conservative. For 3Q:FY26, we are projecting sales of $1.194 billion (up 27%; Street at $1.169 billion), product revenue of $1.143 billion (up 27%), operating margin of 12.5%, and EPS of $0.38 (Street at $0.28). For FY:26, Snowflake expects product sales of $4.325 billion (up 25%), product gross margin of 75%, an operating margin of 8%, and an adjusted free cash flow margin of 25%. For FY:26, we are projecting sales of $4.625 billion (up 28%; Street at $4.525 billion) and EPS of $1.36 (Street at $1.11).

Valuation: Our 12-month price target of $245 for BUY-rated Snowflake is based on an enterprise-value-to-sales ratio of 15x our CY:26 revenue projection. Given Snowflake's rapid growth, the strong secular tailwinds in the data cloud market and the company's cloud native platform, we believe the stock will command a premium valuation relative to the average software vendor. As Snowflake continues to aggressively invest back into the business and seeks to expand its customer base around the world, the company's profitability remains well below its long-term potential at maturity. Therefore, traditional P/E metrics or other profit-driven metrics are not applicable, and we value the stock on an enterprise-value-to-revenue ratio.

Risks: Risks to our price target for BUY-rated Snowflake include the following: (1) maintaining high rates of revenue growth that the market expects; (2) the company's limited operating history and ability to generate sustainable profits; (3) competition from new software vendors, large IT companies, and cloud providers; (4) new innovations in the data cloud market; (5) the execution of new innovations and the ability to successfully enter new product categories; (6) the ability to successfully add new customers and expand sales with existing customers; (7) global IT spending trends; (8) the ability to meet pricing expectations; (9) risks of cyber security attacks on the company, and/or its cloud partners; and (10) the impact of geopolitical events on economies and supply chains around the world.
